Wiggins.

And he said to them all, If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily, and follow me. For whosoever will save his life shall lose it: but whosoever will lose his life for my sake, the same shall save it. For what is a man advantaged, if he gain the whole world, and lose himself, or be cast away? For whosoever shall be ashamed of me and of my words, of him shall the Son of man be ashamed, when he shall come in his own glory, and in his Father's, and of the holy angels.

And it came to pass, that, as he was praying in a certain place, when he ceased, one of his disciples said unto him, Lord, teach us to pray, as John also taught his disciples. And he said unto them, When ye pray, say, Our Father which art in heaven, Hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done, as in heaven, so in earth. Give us day by day our daily bread. And forgive us our sins; for we also forgive every one that is indebted to us. And lead us not into temptation; but deliver us from evil. And he said unto them, Which of you shall have a friend, and shall go unto him at midnight, and say unto him, Friend, lend me three loaves; For a friend of mine in his journey is come to me, and I have nothing to set before him? And he from within shall answer and say, Trouble me not: the door is now shut, and my children are with me in bed; I cannot rise and give thee. I say unto you, Though he will not rise and give him, because he is his friend, yet because of his importunity he will rise and give him as many as he needeth. And I say unto you, Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you. For every one that asketh receiveth; and he that seeketh findeth; and to him that knocketh it shall be opened.

And certain of them which were with us went to the sepulchre, and found it even so as the women had said: but him they saw not. Then he said unto them, O fools, and slow of heart to believe all that the prophets have spoken: Ought not Christ to have suffered these things, and to enter into his glory? And beginning at Moses and all the prophets, he expounded unto them in all the scriptures the things concerning himself.

And when the people were gathered thick together, he began to say, This is an evil generation: they seek a sign; and there shall no sign be given it, but the sign of Jonas the prophet. For as Jonas was a sign unto the Ninevites, so shall also the Son of man be to this generation. The queen of the south shall rise up in the judgment with the men of this generation, and condemn them: for she came from the utmost parts of the earth to hear the wisdom of Solomon; and, behold, a greater than Solomon is here. The men of Nineve shall rise up in the judgment with this generation, and shall condemn it: for they repented at the preaching of Jonas; and, behold, a greater than Jonas is here.

No man, when he hath lighted a candle, putteth it in a secret place, neither under a bushel, but on a candlestick, that they which come in may see the light. The light of the body is the eye: therefore when thine eye is single, thy whole body also is full of light; but when thine eye is evil, thy body also is full of darkness. Take heed therefore that the light which is in thee be not darkness. If thy whole body therefore be full of light, having no part dark, the whole shall be full of light, as when the bright shining of a candle doth give thee light.

TELL THEM YOU SAW IT IN THE TRADER

And one of the company said unto him, Master, speak to my brother, that he divide the inheritance with me. And he said unto him, Man, who made me a judge or a divider over you? And he said unto them, Take heed, and beware of covetousness: for a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth. And he spake a parable unto them, saying, The ground of a certain rich man brought forth plentifully: And he thought within himself, saying, What shall I do, because I have no room where to bestow my fruits? And he said, This will I do: I will pull down my barns, and build greater; and there will I bestow all my fruits and my goods. And I will say to my soul, Soul, thou hast much goods laid up for many years; take thine ease, eat, drink, and be merry. But God said unto him, Thou fool, this night thy soul shall be required of thee: then whose shall those things be, which thou hast provided? So is he that layeth up treasure for himself, and is not rich toward God.

THE ADVENTURES OF ROOSTER AND BANJO

BANJO AND ROOSTER WANT TO SEE A TORNADO

“Mama’s coming,” Banjo said as he hurried through the front door at Aunt Nana’s house, followed closely by Rooster. The boys accepted a towel from Aunt Honey as Banjo added, “She’s carrying Pumpkin.”

“Pumpkin is getting to be a load,” Uncle Flick said, hurrying to help. “What’s my big girl doing having to be carried this morning?” he asked as he took the child from her mother and carried her inside. “Are you too little to run through the rain?”

“I ain’t got my shoes,” Pumpkin said. “And I is a big guh-wulll.”

“I declare, the word girl has eight syllables the way you say it, young’un,” Aunt Honey said as she wrapped the girl in a warm towel. “Can you say grrrrrrl?”

“Gull?” Pumpkin asked. “I say it wight?”

Aunt Honey laughed. “Close enough... you’ll get those R’s figured out one day, sweetheart.”

Once everyone was dried off, Mama said, “Thanks so much. Maybe it’s just for the company, but I feel better here than at home when the weather’s this bad.”

“And we have a small, interior room, if we hear about a tornado close by,” Uncle Flick said. “I think Honey has been stocking it, just in case we all get stuck in there.”

“Just bottled water and cushions to throw over the kids,” Aunt Honey said, but the boys were already running to the bathroom.

“Oh, I found a snack bar in the basket,” Rooster hollered. “Can I have one?”

“No!” Aunt Honey had followed them. “We don’t normally eat in the bathroom, anyway,” she told them. “And the whole point of this is in case there’s a tornado sighting. We would want you kids in here, probably in the tub, with cushions over you for a bit of protection. If we were waiting a while, a snack and a bottle of water would help pass the time.”

“I hope there’s a tornado,” Banjo said. “It sounds like fun! Almost like camping out.”

Mama was at the door. “You crazy galoots,” she protested. “We should never hope for bad weather!”

“Well, maybe just a warning, but not a real tornado...” Rooster suggested. “Or a little one...”

“I have some crazy kids,” Mama said. “I think we can have fun, even without a tornado. Hopefully, the weather isn’t too bad so we can watch television.”

After an episode of The Little Rascals, Pumpkin crawled up in Aunt Honey’s lap and fell asleep. The boys wanted to play outside, but the torrential rain had been joined by lightning, and Mama said no.

“We can play a board game,” Rooster suggested, taking Sequence Dice off the shelf. “It’s a lot of fun.”

Three games later, the boys were tired of the game. Normally, they would play for an hour or more, but something about not being able to play outside meant they wanted to play outside more and more.

Aunt Nana brought two brand new notebooks to the table. She handed each boy a box of pencil crayons and a new, sharp pencil. “You said earlier a tornado might be fun. Imagine you’re outside, with no shelter available, and there’s a bad storm. What would you do?”

“We know how to build a shelter,” Rooster said. “You showed us in the trees, and we’ve built them with Uncle Flick and Aunt Honey lots of times.”

Aunt Honey had laid Pumpkin down in bed, and she walked in just in time to hear the statement. “Most of the shelters you’ve built with me would fall down in strong winds,” she said. “So then what?”

“We have to learn to weave the branches together,” Banjo said. “That makes them stronger. Uncle Flick told me about it, but we didn’t do it yet.”

“Ok, so in the story...” Rooster wrote in his notebook for a minute before finishing his sentence. “...We know how to build a safe shelter. We get inside just in time. A tornado hits the woods we’re in.”

“Woods? Why are you in the woods?” Uncle Flick asked. “A tree is likely to fall on you.”

“I was thinking there would be so many trees, that would stop the tornado,” Banjo said. “Right?”

“I don’t want to scare y’all, but no, that’s not right,” Uncle Flick said. “Next time a tornado goes near here, I need to take you boys to look at the path a tornado makes through trees. It’s pretty horrifying.”

“Where do we go, then?” Rooster asked, erasing a line from his story before closing the notebook.

“A solidly built building, preferably with a closet or bathroom that isn’t located on an outside wall is best,” Aunt Nana said. “The closet in the bedroom you kids sleep in when you spend the night here is best at my house, after the bathroom.”

“But if we’re caught outside... an old barn? Under a bridge? Like a bridge with no water...” Banjo was trying to think of the best thing, but he was coming up empty.

“Believe it or not, a ditch,” Aunt Honey said. “That’s better than under a bridge, because tornado winds act weird under bridges. And the barn could fall on you.”

Rooster opened his notebook. “Y’all stay close,” he said. “I’m gonna need some expert advice on this story!”
