But speak thou the things which become sound doctrine: That the aged men be sober, grave, temperate, sound in faith, in charity, in patience. The aged women likewise, that they be in behaviour as becometh holiness, not false accusers, not given to much wine, teachers of good things; That they may teach the young women to be sober, to love their husbands, to love their children, To be discreet, chaste, keepers at home, good, obedient to their own husbands, that the word of God be not blasphemed. Young men likewise exhort to be sober minded. In all things shewing thyself a pattern of good works: in doctrine shewing uncorruptness, gravity, sincerity, Sound speech, that cannot be condemned; that he that is of the contrary part may be ashamed, having no evil thing to say of you.

To the chief Musician, A Psalm of David. The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament sheweth his handywork. Day unto day uttereth speech, and night unto night sheweth knowledge. There is no speech nor language, where their voice is not heard. Their line is gone out through all the earth, and their words to the end of the world. In them hath he set a tabernacle for the sun, Which is as a bridegroom coming out of his chamber, and rejoiceth as a strong man to run a race. His going forth is from the end of the heaven, and his circuit unto the ends of it: and there is nothing hid from the heat thereof. The law of the LORD is perfect, converting the soul: the testimony of the LORD is sure, making wise the simple. The statutes of the LORD are right, rejoicing the heart: the commandment of the LORD is pure, enlightening the eyes. The fear of the LORD is clean, enduring for ever: the judgments of the LORD are true and righteous altogether. More to be desired are they than gold, yea, than much fine gold: sweeter also than honey and the honeycomb. Moreover by them is thy servant warned: and in keeping of them there is great reward. Who can understand his errors? cleanse thou me from secret faults. Keep back thy servant also from presumptuous sins; let them not have dominion over me: then shall I be upright, and I shall be innocent from the great transgression. Let the words of my mouth, and the meditation of my heart, be acceptable in thy sight, O LORD, my strength, and my redeemer.

Psalms 19:1-14

Exhort servants to be obedient unto their own masters, and to please them well in all things; not answering again; Not purloining, but shewing all good fidelity; that they may adorn the doctrine of God our Saviour in all things. For the grace of God that bringeth salvation hath appeared to all men, Teaching us that, denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live soberly, righteously, and godly, in this present world; Looking for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Saviour Jesus Christ; Who gave himself for us, that he might redeem us from all iniquity, and purify unto himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works. These things speak, and exhort, and rebuke with all authority. Let no man despise thee.

Put them in mind to be subject to principalities and powers, to obey magistrates, to be ready to every good work, To speak evil of no man, to be no brawlers, but gentle, shewing all meekness unto all men. For we ourselves also were sometimes foolish, disobedient, deceived, serving divers lusts and pleasures, living in malice and envy, hateful, and hating one another. But after that the kindness and love of God our Saviour toward man appeared, Not by works of righteousness which we have done, but according to his mercy he saved us, by the washing of regeneration, and renewing of the Holy Ghost; Which he shed on us abundantly through Jesus Christ our Saviour; That being justified by his grace, we should be made heirs according to the hope of eternal life.

TELL THEM YOU SAW IT IN THE TRADER

This is a faithful saying, and these things I will that thou affirm constantly, that they which have believed in God might be careful to maintain good works. These things are good and profitable unto men. But avoid foolish questions, and genealogies, and contentions, and strivings about the law; for they are unprofitable and vain. A man that is an heretick after the first and second admonition reject; Knowing that he that is such is subverted, and sinneth, being condemned of himself. When I shall send Artemas unto thee, or Tychicus, be diligent to come unto me to Nicopolis: for I have determined there to winter. Bring Zenas the lawyer and Apollos on their journey diligently, that nothing be wanting unto them. And let ours also learn to maintain good works for necessary uses, that they be not unfruitful. All that are with me salute thee. Greet them that love us in the faith. Grace be with you all. Amen.

THE ADVENTURES OF ROOSTER AND BANJO

BANJO AND ROOSTER MAKE SUMMER PLANS

One day, Rooster looked at Aunt Nana very seriously. "Are we gonna stay with you while school's out for summer?" he asked.

"Yes, you are," she said, smiling. "I'm excited about it."

"But what are we gonna do?" he asked. "Just stay here and play outside all the time?"

"I mean, if you prefer to go to school, I'm sure I can find a place for you," Aunt Nana said. "That's got to be a lot more fun than my yard, right?"

"NO!" Banjo hollered, running up. "Rooster, have you lost your mind? We always have lots of fun at Aunt Nana's house. Besides, you know she's gonna take us somewhere."

Aunt Nana laughed. "Do you have any idea how much I miss the days when you would say, We goin' summers? It took me a while to figure out you weren't trying to skip seasons and go to summer, just go somewhere."

The boys giggled. Aunt Nana often teased them about how much cuter and sweeter they had been as little kids. But they knew she also enjoyed watching them grow up.

"I have an idea," Banjo said. "We'll make a list of things we want to do this summer. Maybe Aunt Nana will take us some of the places. And we can build forts in the field or go play at the pond when we stay here. We can rake the yard or plant stuff for Uncle Tractor while he's at work."

"Maybe Uncle Tractor needs to make a list," Aunt Nana suggested.

Rooster said, "Yeah, he should! Just remind him that we're just kids, okay?"

"I promise," Aunt Nana agreed solemnly.

Soon, the boys were busy building a fort in the backyard. Aunt Nana kept an eye on them from her office, amused that the list of summer activities had already been abandoned. After three snacks and a rest break, plus much sweat and hard work, the fort was declared finished. Aunt Nana was required to inspect it.

"We even have a bathroom!" Rooster exclaimed. "This is the best fort ever!"

Aunt Nana bit her tongue just in time. If the boys had dug a hole for a privy, they were going to wish they had built the fort in the field, not the backyard. But no. They had found the toilet seat for tent camping, plus the bucket to set it on, and put it in the corner of the fort. For emergencies, they said.

Aunt Nana inspected every square inch of the fort. The boys had remembered not to take wood from Uncle Flick's smoker rack. They hadn't robbed the stack of driftwood Uncle Tractor kept for the cane mill. Even Aunt Honey's pile of debris she was keeping for raised garden beds had been spared.

The boys had used pallets Aunt Nana kept for them and a couple of downed limbs for the structure of the fort. One wall was formed by turning the picnic table on its side. They had added sheets for the roof and other walls.

"This is great," Aunt Nana complimented. "You remembered to use sheets from the stack I set aside for you, and the picnic table is perfect. When you get hungry again, you can lower it like they did in the old castles, and I can get in with the food. Plus, you'll have a place to eat."

"We made a list, too," Banjo said. "At the top is the things we really, really wanna do. Then we added stuff we've done before that was really fun."

Much thought, pencil lead, and eraser dust had been spent on the list, Aunt Nana could tell. They all sat down on the floor of the fort to look over it. "Have you boys ever been to a water park?" Aunt Nana asked.

"I barely 'member it," Rooster said. "It's by the baseball field in Gulfport, so I see it all the time."

"That's Gulf Islands," Aunt Nana said. "Did you know that one is being built by the Hattiesburg Zoo? It's called Serengeti Springs. We'll go to one or the other this summer, at least once."

"Like... for real?" The boys shouldn't have been amazed, but they were. Aunt Nana enjoyed taking them places. They could imagine her going down the waterslides with them, even though she was old. "You're the best, Aunt Nana," Banjo said.

"Hmmm... the ferry was fun last year. We'll see. That's a long day. And I'm not sure we'll get back to Jackson for the museums and playground this summer, but we'll definitely go again one day," Aunt Nana said.

"The new things, most of them I'll have to check with your Mama and Daddy first. Like the ropes course. You boys are strong and probably old enough, but we'll need permission for that one. The beach, only if I have another adult with me, especially if we take Pumpkin. It's too easy for me to be distracted with one of you and lose sight of the other," she added.

"But you'll check, right?" Rooster asked. "And we'll get to do the water park and maybe one more new thing?"

"I had already asked your parents for permission to take y'all to the water park," Aunt Nana said. "That's why I said yes to that one."

"And the vacation?" Banjo reminded her.

Aunt Nana made an innocent face, with big eyes. "Vacation? Do we take vacations together? Hmmm..."

The boys would just have to wait to find out what she had in mind.
