THE ADVENTURES OF ROOSTER AND BANJO

BANJO AND ROOSTER RESCUE KITTENS

One day, Aunt Nana was working in her laundry room when she realized she hadn't heard the boys in a while. That was dangerous. She didn't spot their bright blue shirts out the window.

Stepping onto the front porch, she was just in time to see a blue shirt disappearing into the leaves of a tall oak tree. "Banjo! Rooster!" she called. "What are y'all doing up that tree? You're not allowed to climb that one."

The tree was old, with a thick trunk and spreading limbs. Unfortunately, some of the limbs hung low enough to the ground for little boys to reach.

Banjo's head popped out. "We're rescuing the cats! Well, kittens. They got up here, and they was crying. And we thought about sending the Mama cat after them, but we can't find her."

Aunt Nana walked to the base of the tree. "Have you reached the kittens?"

"I have," Rooster hollered. "I'm gonna hand 'em down to Banjo, so he won't have to climb as high."

"Ok, Banjo, you hand them down to me," Aunt Nana said. "Or drop them to the ground."

"Drop them!?" The boys were horrified. "NO!"

Aunt Nana laughed. "I didn't mean for you to throw them down, especially not from where you are, Rooster. If Banjo lays down on the limb he's standing on, holds the kitten as low as he can, and gently drops it, that's only a few feet. Cats can handle a bigger drop than you boys can."

"So that's how..." Rooster trailed off, not willing to admit he had wondered how to get the kittens to the ground.

Banjo handed the first rescued kitten to Aunt Nana. "I thought I was gonna have to climb down with a kitten clinging to my shirt and then come back for the next one."

"That would be a lot of work," Aunt Nana said. "Think smarter, darling. If you had come and asked me, I could have told you a better way."

"We was afraid you would make us leave 'em up here," Rooster said. "I couldn't stand them crying."

"I understand," Aunt Nana said. "I want you boys to use your strength to help those who are weaker, but I don't want you getting hurt. Your tender hearts are one of the best things about y'all, but you have to guard your heart, too. Don't just 'follow your heart.' It will lead you wrong sometimes. Do what God says, and that will never lead you down the wrong path."

"God talked about rescuing kittens?" Banjo asked, amazed at the thought.

"I don't believe there is a cat in the entire Bible," Aunt Nana said, smiling. "But there are verses about having an animal fall into the ditch, and how you rescue it, even on the Sabbath day when the Jewish people didn't work. There's another about not putting a muzzle on oxen, which means you can't make the ox work for you without letting the animal eat. So we can assume from that, God wants us to be kind to animals. Feed them, rescue them, that sort of thing."

"That's why you want us to read the whole Bible," Rooster said as he handed the last kitten to his brother and started down. "I don't think I've heard those verses in the stories we hear in Sunday School."

"Very good point," Aunt Nana exclaimed. "I hadn't thought about it that way, but those verses aren't in the great Bible stories we usually teach children."

"We've barely started reading," Banjo said. "How long is it gonna take to read the whole Bible?"

"Well, there are over a thousand chapters, so if you keep going at a chapter a day, it would take just over three years," Aunt Nana said, as the boys groaned and started figuring out how ancient they would be when they finally finished.

Aunt Nana added, "But we started in the New Testament, remember. It's much shorter than the Old Testament. It won't take a full year to read, and then we may start over in the New Testament. After we've done that, maybe we could start reading two chapters a day and finish the Old Testament in another year or so."

"Two chapters?" Rooster was a good reader, but he struggled with some of the words, even in the easy-to-read version Aunt Nana had given him.

"But remember, you'll be a year older by then," Banjo said.

"That's right!" Rooster exclaimed, thrilled at the thought. "My teacher says I'm reading real good for my age, so I'll just keep getting better."

Rooster was rubbing one of the kittens, but the animal ran off. "Awwwww... I wanted to hold you!" he called to running kitten. Then he realized the other kittens were also running away. "Some thanks we get, Banjo!"

Banjo laughed. "I think I know where that Mama cat was hiding when we looked for her to see if she would rescue her babies." Sure enough, the kittens were running to the open barn door, answering their Mama's call. "By the way, Aunt Nana, how would you have rescued the kittens?"

"I would have asked Uncle Tractor to lift you boys up there in the bucket on his tractor," she said.

The boys were immediately disappointed they hadn't thought of that. "But we're gonna be first responders one day," Rooster said, encouraged by the thought. "And we started by rescuing kittens!"

We ask you, brothers, to respect those who labor among you and are over you in the Lord and admonish you, and to esteem them very highly in love because of their work. Be at peace among yourselves. And we urge you, brothers, admonish the idle, encourage the fainthearted, help the weak, be patient with them all. See that no one repays anyone evil for evil, but always seek to do good to one another and to everyone. Rejoice always, pray without ceasing, give thanks in all circumstances; for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus for you. Do not quench the Spirit. Do not despise prophecies, but test everything; hold fast what is good. Abstain from every form of evil.

Now may the God of peace himself sanctify you completely, and may your whole spirit and soul and body be kept blameless at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ. He who calls you is faithful; he will surely do it. Brothers, pray for us. Greet all the brothers with a holy kiss. I put you under oath before the Lord to have this letter read to all the brothers. The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you.

Do you not know that you are God's temple and that God's Spirit dwells in you? If anyone destroys God's temple, God will destroy him. For God's temple is holy, and you are that temple. Let no one deceive himself. If anyone among you thinks that he is wise in this age, let him become a fool that he may become wise. For the wisdom of this world is folly with God. For it is written, "He catches the wise in their craftiness," and again, "The Lord knows the thoughts of the wise, that they are futile." So let no one boast in men. For all things are yours, whether Paul or Apollos or Cephas or the world or life or death or the present or the future—all are yours, and you are Christ's, and Christ is God's.
